Wellesley To Treat '43, '44 With Dates, Dinner, And Dance

And The Pace Changed -Or, Humor Saves Stuff

Grave and serious had been the long discussion over the fate and future of Technology's humor magazine. Never before had our top group of "BMOC" seemed to concentrate so hard on the subject of the moment. The Litchfield Lounge was packed with intently listening spectators and the peak of the debate had been reached and major points had been agreed upon, when, from the end of the table, a committee member arose. groggily shaking his head. As the throng waited in hushed expectancy, he curiously asked: "What about the Peace Federation's budget?"

Dinner Provided

The Wellesley C.A. will supply both the dinner and the dates at 7:00 P.M. on the balcony of the girls' swimming pool. After the dinner the group will adjourn to the Alumnae Hall where the more informal business of the evening is to take place in rustic style.

Klyce Continues Work With Magazine Board For Next Issue

Case Unsettled After Month Of Conflict

With a decision to retain the supervisory set-up under which Voo Doo has operated for the past three weeks, the Institute Committee postponed definite action on the month-old fight for at least four weeks. The final verdict may not be reached until January.

The affair began on October 31, when the Inst. Comm. voted a probe of Voo Doo's purposes, functions, and personnel. A week later the investigating committee, headed by Jack M. Klyce, '41, reported unfavorably for Voo Doo on the several points questioned.

Solons Take Control

this hotly contested meeting, Voo Doo presenting a strong defense. Inst Comm. sentiment sided with the Klyce committee report, however, and complete control of Voo Doo was taken by the Institute Committee.

Given entire charge of the humor magazine with power over its managing board, Klyce proceeded in publication of a new style of periodical. Several men not previously connected with Voo Doo were asked to help. They and some regular staff members produced, under Klyce's direction, the November issue which was sold last week end.

This issue, a considerable departure from the usual Voo Doo, was a combination of cartoons, photographs, and serious and humorous articles. Student reception of the magazine was apparently mixed, but the Institute Committee seemed, from its attitude last night, to approve of the new idea.

Discussion Before Action

Preceding the Institute Committee's initial action was discussion among many activity leaders. Complaints against Voo Doo from students, Faculty, Alumni, and others, relayed to these prominent students, had convinced them that a radical change in vited to attend the dinner in the the magazine was necessary. Charging continuous mismanagement and legal action—successfully. The investigating committee resulted.

> This preliminary, more-or-less private discussion of the problem provided Voo Doo its first cause for complaint. The proponents of the investigation were attacking the magazine stealthily, behind its back, the management asserted.

Again Charge Unfairness

After the Inst. Comm. had taken control of the publication, Voo Doo again made accusations of unfairness. Many (Continued on Page 2)

Compromise Effected At Voo Doo's Suggestion

Voo Doo is to remain under complete control of Jack Klyce, '41, for the next issue, it was decided at last night's meeting of the Institute Committee. A "clarifying" motion, introduced by William M. Folberth, Jr., '41, asking that Klyce be given power to appoint such members as he sees fit to the staff of Voo Doo, was passed.

Action on Voo Doo started when President Murdock called for Klyce's report covering his action as supervisor of the last issue of Voo Doo. An estimated financial statement for the month of November was then sub-Charges and counter charges filled | mitted by Richard F. Cottrell, '41, general manager of Voo Doo. Motions and amendments ranging from return of complete control to the old Voo Doo staff to the installation of a new Managing Board were discussed in rapid succession. Most of the debating was carried on by Klyce, Cottrell, Harold E. Dato, '41, Walter P. Keith, '41, Carl L. McGinnis, '42, and Robert S. Reebie, '43. Final action resulted in the extension of Klyce's powers over Voo Doo for another issue.

Mann Appointed

Other business of the meeting was the appointment of Martin Mann, '41, to the Walker Conference Committee, after Dato's resignation from that committee had been accepted. As President of the Sophomore Class, Reebie announced that a report of the Sophomore Dance would be forthcoming at the next Institute Committee meet-

Klyce, in his report, said that the last issue of Voo Doo could not be considered perfect in any way, but that the trend was for the better. "The experiment in my opinion was successful," he stated.

Cottrell For Supervision

Cottrell, throughout the discussion, advocated Klyce's supervision for the next issue. He asserted that he and Klyce could get along well together poor publications policy, they sought and that there would be no lack of cooperation. The financial statement, submitted by Cottrell, showed an estimated net loss for the month of November of $136.81.

> Dato was actively opposed to compromise in any form. He recommended either the reinstatement of the old board with absolutely no supervision by the Institute Committee, or the establishment of an entire new board.

Meeting Next Week

The next meetings of the Institute Committee are scheduled for December 5, December 19, and January 2.

VOO DOO

Voo Doo stands today right where it stood three weeks ago as a result of the Institute Committee's action then and now. Ultimate power is still vested in an Inst. Comm. representative. The ambiguity concerning the limits of this power yet exists.

Now there is only one hope for the successful solution to all the problems concerning Voo Doo. That is for the cooperation of all parties involved in the magazine's production. That such cooperation would be available was vouched for by Klyce and Cottrell. That such cooperation was missing over the past three weeks is vouched for by the evidence.

We wonder at the dilemma that must face the underboards of Voo Doo and new talent which wishes to work on the magazine. From whom are they to take orders, Klyce or the Senior Board? Should Klyce countermand an order of the former heads of the publication, has he the right to substitute one of his own, or must he wait another of the board's orders which he may countermand?

The Senior Board of VooDoo and Klyce will have to get together immediately and clear up this ambiguity, for the Institute Committee has failed to do so. For Voo Doo's own good they themselves will have to create some system out of this chaos, and, together, the Senior Board and the Inst. Comm. representative will have to explain their working plan to the younger men on the publication.

We hope they can do it.

of these charges arose over a difference of interpretation of the motion giving Klyce control of the magazine. The Voo Doo board claimed in addition, however, that it was given no opportunity to cooperate in the publication of the November issue.

Last night's action leaves the situation practically unchanged. Both Klyce and Richard F. Cottrell, '41, Voo Doo general manager, asserted, however, that the friction prevalent during the past three weeks would be eliminated.

Climax Still Awaited

Deferment of further action until after the next issue of Voo Doo, which will probably appear in the week of December 16, indicates that a decision can not be expected until the Institute Committee meeting on December 19 or possibly January 2.
